

The Southeastern Severe Storms Symposium will focus on severe weather research and events in the United States. Severe weather can encompass, but not limited to, tornadoes, hail, and tropical cyclones. There will be two different aspects of the symposium: Broadcast and Operational. The broadcast portion of the symposium will be on March 2 while the operational will be on March 3.

Papers and posters for this symposium will address factual, meteorological and sociological aspects of severe weather events events, as well as research into the subject. The deadline for abstracts of presentations or posters will be Feb 7, 2012. We cannot guarantee that every submission will be presented as it depends on the volume of submissions.

To submit abstracts go to: <http://www.nwa.org.msstate.edu/abstracts2012.html>
